Comic Script by NERO VILLAGALLOS O'REILLY; Illustrated by FRANCESCA CIREGIA; Cover Design or Artwork by SUSPIRIA VILCHEZ

Butterball was believed to be dead. But that was just the beginning...

The long-awaited return of Hellraiser to comics is finally upon us, starting with Hellraiser: Resurrections, a series of five one-shots setting up the launch of a new Hellraiser ongoing series coming to shelves this winter!

We saw the fall of Butterball at the end of Hellbound: Hellraiser II. Now we'll witness his rise as the wounded Cenobite is taken in by a mysterious do-gooder who slowly nurses him back to health, all while worming her way into his brain...and maybe even his heart?

The horrors come fast and hard as writer Nero Villagallos O'Reilly and artist Francesca Ciregia weave a terror tale that revisits the classic Cenobite and fills in the gaps between Hellbound and now. But is Butterball the hero of this story, or is it the woman he's falling for?

The first arc of Star Trek delivers a prestige, mystery-driven, high-stakes psychological thriller of an opening salvo!

Star Trek (2026) #1 Cover A (Menheere)

Author CHRISTOPHER CANTWELL; Illustrated by DENNIS MENHEERE; Cover Design or Artwork by DENNIS MENHEERE

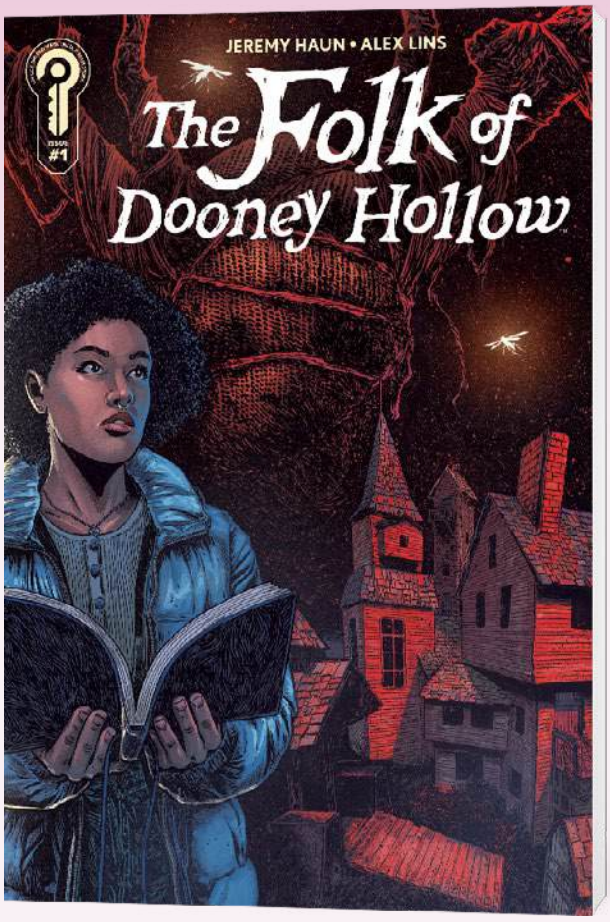

From the pen of fan-favorite writer Christopher Cantwell (Star Trek: Defiant, Star Trek: Red Shirts) and the brush of psychedelic standout Dennis Menheere (Etheres, Little Nightmares) comes the launch of an all-new flagship.

The Enterprise-G is on a desperate mission beyond the known Galaxy to relocate the dying Avuran people when its crew finds a perfect new home in a region of unknown space called the Epsilon Corridor. Three pristine Class-M worlds—the Trinity—await the refugees. No signs of civilization. No detectable threats.

When Captain Seven of Nine and her divided, fast-tracked crew begin exploring the Trinity, they uncover disturbing contradictions: vanished structures, inexplicable artifacts, time skips, and evidence of a presence Starfleet's century-old probes never detected. Each world houses a different ecosystem, different physics problems, and different secrets—as if they've been curated...or quarantined. But from who? Or what?—new worlds, new species, new existential threats—anchored by Seven, Jack, and Crash La Forge fighting to keep the mission together as the Galaxy's oldest ghosts awaken.

Comic Script by JEREMY HAUN;
Illustrated by ALEX LINS;
Colorist PATRICIA MULVIHILL;
Letterer ANDWORLD DESIGN;
Cover Design or Artwork by JEREMY HAUN

Deep in the Ozark Mountains lies the village of Dooney Hollow, hidden away from modern society for over a century. Its existence is only spoken of around campfires, in hushed tones, by people who don't necessarily believe. Those who stumble upon Dooney Hollow never return to prove that it's real, because dark forces lurk in the woods just outside the town gate.

Kerri is a young graduate student who goes to the Ozarks to get a feel for the land and its people—and its local legends. Little does she know how close to these legends she will get, as a chance encounter in the forest leads her to ceremonial grounds and the terrifying monster that keeps the citizens of Dooney Hollow living in fear.

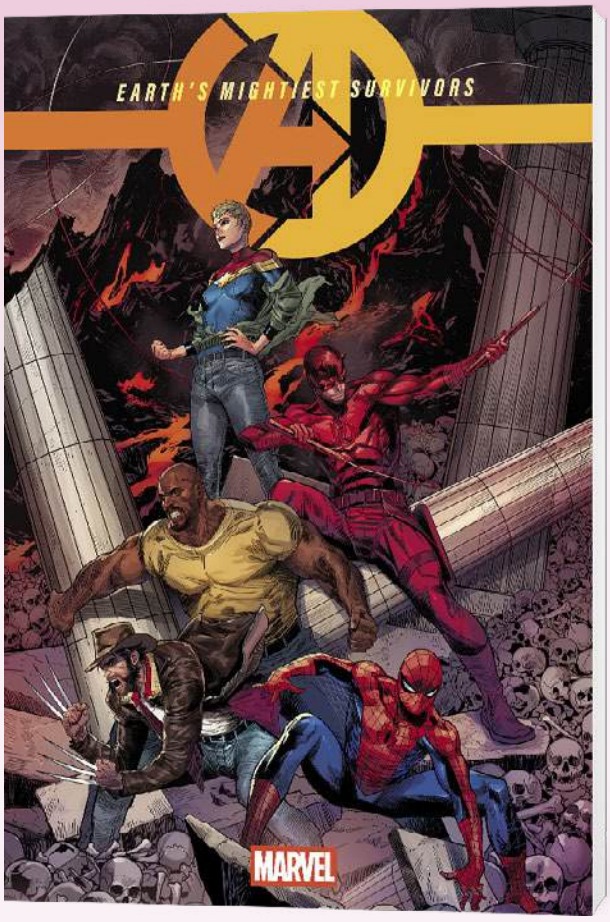

A new horrifying tale from Jeremy Haun (Murder Podcast, The Beauty), with incredible art by Alex Lins (Briar; Plastic Man No More!) and legendary colorist Trish Mulvihill (100 Bullets).

But now, on what seems like a night like any other, she's whisked away by the very fantasies she once delighted in. It's up to her loving father to beat back the dark and rescue her from a dream within a dream...

In the Shadow of No Towers

Written by ART SPIEGELMAN

For the Pulitzer Prize-winning Written by of Maus, the terrorist attacks of September 11th were both highly personal and intensely political. In the Shadow of No Towers is a masterful and moving account of the events and aftermath of that tragic day.

Spiegelman and his family bore witness to the attacks in their lower Manhattan neighborhood. But the horrors they survived that morning were only the beginning for Spiegelman, as his anguish was quickly displaced by fury at the U.S. government, which shamelessly co-opted the events for its own preconceived agenda.

He responded in the way he knows best. In an oversized, two-page-spread format that echoes the scale of the earliest newspaper comics, he relates his experience of the national tragedy in drawings and text that convey—with his singular artistry and his characteristic provocation, outrage, and wit—the unfathomable enormity of the event itself, the obvious and insidious effects it had on his life, and the extraordinary, often hidden changes that have been enacted in the name of post-9/11 national security and that have begun to undermine the very foundation of American democracy.

"For one moment on an otherwise perfect fall day in Manhattan, time stood absolutely still, and since then history has rushed past too quickly for any artist to keep up. This disjunction between experience and understanding gives In the Shadow of No Towers something so much more than a linear narrative:

IT IS A LOVE LETTER TO A CITY THAT THIS ARTIST, NO MATTER HIS FEARS, COULD NOT BRING HIMSELF TO LEAVE."

The World's Fastest Man

Written by FREDERICK NOLAND

Celebrating the history-making Black American who smashed world records and became a global cycling sensation!

Cartoonist Frederick Noland is a cyclist himself and in this epic 400 page graphic biography of America's first Black world champion, he thrills in the records Taylor broke and the adoring public he found across North America, Europe, and Australia, all the while showing how the invention of the bicycle changed society. Noland pens a gorgeous, humane, graphic paean to Major Taylor, illustrating how the fastest man in America also had a deep well of integrity and fortitude not just to succeed, but to overcome the racist abuse he faced from fellow athletes and society at large.

Paul jockeys to hold his place in the complicated hierarchy of school bullying.

Rainey takes a classic "school daze" tale—both wistful and hilarious—and manages to turn it on its head with a couple of his now famous twists. Find out the truth behind The Murder School and the effect it's had on Rainey well into middle-age.

Dig and Drift

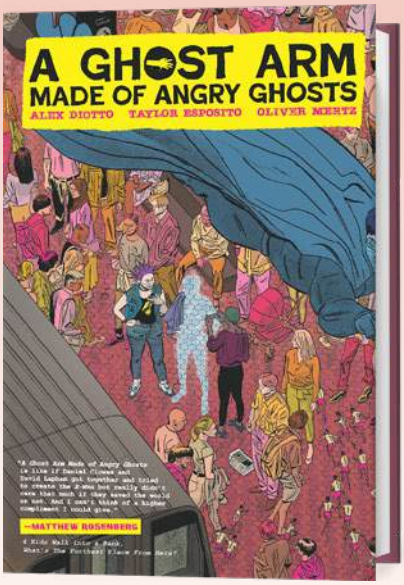

Written by DELPHINE PANIQUE;
Translated by DEVORAH FISCHLER

Dreamlike and darkly humorous stories of migrant labor and the gig economy for fans of Black Mirror and The Twilight Zone.

In a delicate, sometimes searing send-up of documentary cartooning, Delphine Panique stitches together vignettes of an eerie dream-world, not dissimilar from our own, and its most marginalized workers: single migrant mothers.

Vibrant, smart, and masterfully spun, Dig and Drift at once summons humor, tragedy, and ironic, steely optimism. The indomitable spirit of working women reverberates throughout the book, translated into English for the first time by translator Devorah Fischler.

At the end of the book's original introduction, I wrote: "One can forgive but should never forget." Twenty years later I would add: One also has to understand why this happened. Because if we know the answer, we can stop history from repeating itself.

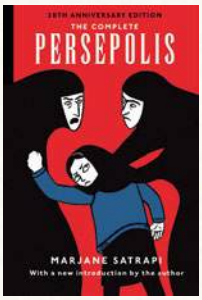

To the freedom of all, wherever they may be.

Who Needs Donuts?

Written by
MARK ALAN STAMATY

The cult classic kids book in all its resplendent absurdity and subversiveness

Sam's love of donuts takes him to the Big City where he makes friends with Mr. Bikferd, a world class collector of donuts. But when Mr. Bikferd falls in love with Pretzel Annie, the prophecy of an old woman comes true: "Who needs donuts when you've got love?" Mr. Bikferd bequeaths his donut collection to Sam, who uses it to save the old woman from drowning in a basement flooded with coffee.

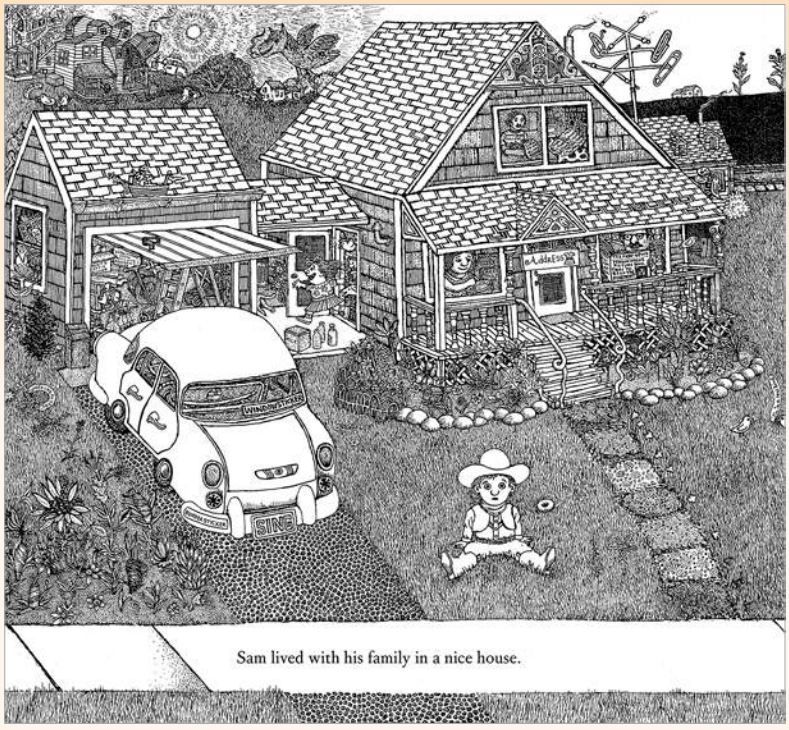

This is a reissue of Mark Alan Stamaty's masterpiece of the absurd, first published 50 years ago. With an illustration style that mixes a benign Hieronymus Bosch with an urban Where's Waldo?, Stamaty's off-the-wall humor is on target for little kids and big kids today.

Baldur's Gate 3: Astarion

Written by T. KINGFISHER

Astarion Ancunin was supposed to be a magistrate, not a vampire spawn. He was supposed to serve the law, not the vicious vampire lord Cazador Szarr. And he was supposed to drink fine wine, not rat blood. Alas—the city of Baldur's Gate cares little for what's supposed to happen.

Though he has been powerless to resist his master's bidding, haunting the nighttime streets to fetch warm blood, Astarion has never surrendered his hope. One day, this nightmare must end. He just has to find out how.

When the vampire lord announces a twisted competition for his favor, an opportunity presents itself in the form of a rare prize . . . and an unlikely alliance. The blood of a dead god is buried deep beneath Baldur's Gate, and, to get it, Astarion will need the help of a handsome Aasimar paladin named Hahn den Suriel.

There are just a few problems. Astarion is not supposed to trust his fellow spawn. He's not supposed to go out into the city for his own ends rather than the vampire lord's. And he's certainly not supposed to strike a deal with a stranger whose golden eyes can snare even a blackened, undead heart. But the city of Baldur's Gate cares little for what's supposed to happen.

Illustrated by CHRIS SCALF and CHANDRA FREE;

The Solo Play Rulebook includes everything needed to create single-player RPG adventures on the Planet of the Apes!

The book features design tools and guides to empower both new and experienced gamers to modify existing multicharacter scenarios for individual play and craft all-new solo epics utilizing an ingenious mix of oracles, emulator tables, and quick-reference charts. These resources can also be used by Lawgivers to quickly forge plots and conflicts for their player groups, ideal for when they don't have a lot of preparation time to stage a game.
